“Battle of the Winemakers Brunch” at NENI Zürich

On November 30, the “Battle of the Winemakers Brunch” event series enters its second round at the NENI restaurant on Langstrasse. Under the motto “Same same but different – Chardonnay,” everything revolves around this white grape variety. In addition to a rich brunch buffet and fine à la carte dishes, guests can look forward to an exciting Chardonnay degustation: Three tasting rounds, each with two glasses, invite guests to discover the many facets of this grape variety. The event will be hosted by wine consultant Artim Ibraimi from Landolt Weine, who will guide guests through an enjoyable Sunday with information, background knowledge, and a touch of humour. There will also be little surprises and the chance to win a dinner for two at NENI.

“We always want to create new incentives to visit NENI. With the monthly ‘Battle of the Winemakers Brunch,’ we invite guests to experience wine enjoyment in a new, informal way and take them on a culinary journey of discovery where they can not only taste, but also compare, discuss, and choose their favourites,” says Lukas Meier, General Manager of the two 25hours Hotels in Zurich. “At the first edition last month, we had two sparkling wines competing against each other, namely Champagne vs. Franciacorta. Each event offers the opportunity to immerse yourself in a different world of wine.”

The brunch offers a varied selection of cold and warm dishes – from cheese from the Zurich Oberland, eggs and bacon to oriental classics such as shakshuka, hummus and labneh. Warm dishes are served to accompany the wines, each of which is paired with the wines being tasted. Drinks – including specialty coffees, tea, juice, and water – are included in the price of the event, which is CHF 79 per person. Each guest also receives a CHF 20 voucher from Landolt Weine.

The next “Battle of the Winemakers Brunch” will take place on November 30, 2025, from 1 to 4 p.m. After that, it will always be held on the last Sunday of the month: two wine worlds, one brunch.
